

Wolf Creek Indian Village & Museum
"Friends of Wolf Creek"

Wolf Creek Indian Village & Museum is a not for profit entity operated by the Bland County Economic Development Authority, and the County of Bland. Our goals are: to forge an understanding of the First People to occupy the area now known as Bland County, Virginia. Our mission is develop programs and projects to service the needs of students, scholars and visitors by maintaining two museums. A conventional museum and archive dedicated to American Indian Culture and research with a recreated village dedicated to the preservation and interpretation of the Bland County Archeological site (44BD1 the Brown-Johnston Site) on which the Wolf Creek Complex was originally founded. Membership to "Friends of the Museum" is open to those that believe in the mission of Wolf Creek Indian Village & Museum.
